22,297 Indigenous children living in out-of-home care

11 February 2022: On the 14th anniversary of the National Apology to Indigenous Peoples, SNAICC–National Voice for our Children is calling on governments to honour the fundamental spirit and intent of that Apology by ensuring that injustices of the past never happen again. Secretariat of National Aboriginal and Islander Child Care (SNAICC) is the national peak body in Australia representing the interests of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children and families. This year also marks the 25th anniversary of the Bringing them Home report which shone a light on the deep trauma and injustice of the Stolen Generations. SNAICC is still trying to negotiate government action on the 54 recommendations in the report, most of which remain unrealised.

Justice Reinvestment Seminar

Change the Record free online event 12:30pm-1:30pm EST on 11 March 2022

Change the Record is Australia's only national Aboriginal-led justice coalition of legal, health and family violence prevention experts. Their mission is to end the incarceration of, and family violence against, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people.

As the Federal Election approaches, Change the Record is lobbying for a commitment to establish a National Justice Reinvestment Body. This would be a national, Aboriginal-led body that could support justice reinvestment sites across the country by sharing best practice, data and advocacy for community-led justice reinvestment.

Australian Prison Reform Journal strongly supports justice reinvestment, which is the redirection of money that would have been spent on corrections to various strategies that decrease crime and strengthen neighbourhoods, thereby decreasing incarceration.

The following First Nations leaders shall be speaking at the seminar on Zoom:

Dean Mosquito, a Kija and Juru man and the Executive Officer for Culture and Transformation at Olabud Doogethu in Western Australia;

Deb Moyle, a Ngarrindjeri and Millewa-Mallee woman and Tiraapendi Wodli Program Manager; and Julie Williams, a Gamilaroi woman and the Mt Druitt Community Engagement Officer for Just Reinvest NSW.
